FITZ LEE AT NORFOLK

UNBOUNDED ENTHUSIASM. A Gigantic Turnent of the Domocrats of the Two Chies-Speeches from McMillan [Special telegram to the Dispatch.] NORFOLK, VA., October 27 -- General Lee's reception here to-night was a superb evation-fully in keeping with the great honors showered upon him in this campaign throughout Virginia. The two cities were fairly abiaze with enthusiasm-bands playing, cannon booming, and bonfires, torches, and all sorts of fireworks illuminated the streets in every direction, while all the surrounding country poured its thousands of people into the city to add éclat to the demonstration. Never was there such a stirring political scene witnessed here, except, perhaps, the jubilee succeeding the election of Cleveland.

On the arrival of General Lee and Coogressman Benton McMillan, of Tennessee, in Portsmouth from Isle of Wight Courthouse, the Democrats of the town took them from the cars outside the city limits and, placing them in a carriage, formed a large procession, and headed by a band of music marched through the city to the ferry wharf amid resounding salvos of artillery and the continued huzzas of the people.

In Norfolk another immense procession was in waiting with bands of music, and as the General landed the cheering was deafening.

In this style the distinguished visitors were escorted to the Atlantic Hotel. After supper another procession, headed by a large body of horsemen from the county and two bands of music, marched to the hotel and escorted General Lee and party to the Market Square. where a mammoth open-air mass-meeting was held, and it was estimated from eight to ten thousand people were preladies and a large representation of the better class of colored people.

An impromptu stand had been erected for the speakers and was magnificently decorated-a beautiful feature of which was a brilliant gas-jet spanning the entire space with the word "Welcome." The meeting was called to order by the chairman of the Executive Committee, and Judge James E. Heath was selected to preside. Hon. Benton McMillan, of Tennessee, was introduced, and addressed the crowd very ably for over one hour and a half on the popular issues of the two great parties and the work of the Democratic party in the past few years and its beneficial results to the country.

General Lee was next introduced, and his appearance was greeted with tremendous and prolonged cheering. After thanking the people of Norfolk for the generous reception tendered him, he proceeded to discuss various State issues and matters relative thereto, together with an appeal for harmony between the sections. He made a telling speech of over two hours, and it was a magnificent argument in behalf of the great interests at stake in the campaign in Virginia. He denounced Sherman, Foraker, Logan, Wise, and Mahone for stirring up sectional hate and trying to array the blacks against the whites at every opportunity.

The General's speech created unbounded enthusiasm, and he was vociferously cheered as he repeatedly scored good points against Mahone, Wise, Lamb, and other newly-fledged Republicans of Virginia. Notwithstanding the great size of the throng the most marked attention was observed throughout.

The meeting closed about 11 o'clock, when the procession reformed and escorted the speakers back to their hotel.

Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.

WINDSOR, VA., Oct. 27, 1885. To-day has been one of the grandest in the history of this county. Early this morning the people began coming Lee came in town, followed by four hundred mounted men, with Captain C. F. Day as chief marshal. Captain Day at once introduced Mr. McMillan, of Tennessee, to not less than fifteen hundred true Virginians, who listened to his able speech with marked attention for two hours. General Lee then took the stand amid the greatest enthusiasm. His speech was able, logical, and full of true patriotism. After the speaking all partook of a sumptuous dinner, spread on the ground. Everything passed off splendidly, and you may put Isle of Wight down Democratic.

ORANGE, October 27, 1885. We had a field-day here yesterday Hon. J. Randolph Tucker disappointed us by not coming, but this was largely made up for by the admirable speech which Judge J. T. Then comsenced a rough-and-tumble fight, both Indians taking part. Gray lost his hold of the whiffletree, caught up a carpenter's hatchet, and struck the Indian nearest to him on the head, which felled him to the floor. The other Indian fled. Gray seized the fallen Indian by the heels and dragged him out, and fastened the door. Whether the Indian was dead or not, Gray was unable to say. The following was to-day promulgated by the President for the information of the public :

EXECUTIVE MANSION,) October 27, 1885.

For nearly eight months a large share of the time of the President has been devoted to hearing applications for offices and the determination of appointments. Much of the time thus spent has undoubtedly subserved the public good; some of it has been sacrificed to the indulgence of the people in their natural insistance upon useless interviews, and some of it has been unjustifiably wasted. The public welfare and due regard for the claims of those whose intorects in the Government, are entirely disconnected with office-holding imperatively demand that in the future the time of the President should be differently occupied, and he confidently expects that all good citizens will acquiesce in the propriety and reasona-bleness of the following plan adopted to that end: After the 1st day of November the President will decline to grant interviews to those seeking public positions or their advocates on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays during that month. From 10 to 11 o'clock in the morning he will receive such other persons as call on strictly private business, and on the same days, at half-past I in the afternoon, he will meet those who merely desire to pay their respects. On all other days and times during that month he will receive only Cabinet officers and heads of departments. Mr. Curry, the newly-appointed Minister to Spain, and his wife were entertained at a dinner to-night by his predecessor, General John W. Foster. Among other guests were Secretary Bayard, Chief-Justice Waite, and the Snanish Minister.

The assignees of John Roach held a conference this afternoon with Secretary Whitney and the Naval Advisory Board with reference to the completion of the new cruisers. The vessels are to be completed by the Navy Depart ment at the contractor's yard and by his workmen, and the meeting to-day was to make arrangements for going or with the work. The Secretary called for a report from the assignees concern-ing the organization of the yards where the work is to be done, the compensa tion of workmen, &c. The report will be made in a few days, and the order to proceed with the work will probably

A meeting was held to take measures to secure competent counsel for his defence, and the mayor last night received a letter signed "Committee of Ten," saying that the colored people are very indignant at the treatment they have been receiving, and the shooting down of their men must be stopped by fair means or foul. A NOVEL DUEL.

How a Texas and an Indian Succeeded it Kitting Each Other.

A Denison (Texas) special says: The particulars of a novel duel in the Indian Territory were received here this afternoon. The affair came off at Tisbamingo, in the Choctaw Nation, last Tishamingo is a small village, Friday. where the Indians do their trading, and is the frequent resort of hard characters from Texas and other parts of the United States. That region is full of outlaws. Among a dozen or more outlaws and Indian sitting in a saloon on Friday was a tall Texan named Chalmers. An Indian police officer named Brown entered the saloon, and Chalmers insisted on treating. As they were about to drink Brown managed to spill Chalmers's liquor on the floor, telling him he had demanded blood, and pulled his revolver with one hand and his dirk with the other. Brown also drew his weapon, and a fight was about to open when the spectators interfered and attempted to settle the matter. Nothing would satisfy the wounded honor of Chalmers but blood, and so the other white men and Indians fixed up a fight on the following terms: The two men were to stand back to back in the middle of the floor. At a given signal each man was to run out of the room, the Indian through the front door and the Texan by the back door. They were to turn in the same direction after clearing the doors, and begin firing promiscuously. Both principals agreed to these terms and took their positions. The signal was given, and both started from the house, pistols in hand. They faced each other on the north side of the house and opened fire at almost the same instant. Three rounds were fired in quick succession. Then the Indian began to stagger, and, running toward Chalmers with a drawn knife, plunged it into the Texan's breast just as the latter fired his last bullet, which penetrated the Indian's heart, killing him instantly. Chalmers died half an hour after his antagonist. Over fifty Indians and whites witnessed the duel. Among the whites was Fred. Fisher, a well known cattle-buyer, who vouches for the authenticity of these facts.

WANTED TO SELL HER BODY.

How a Woman with Starving Children Tried to Chinia Money.

A New York special says: Professor James Walsh stood in the dissecting-room of the New York University Medical Cellege when a messenger arrived and announced that a lady wished to see him. The Professor at once or-dered that she be admitted. As this is a most unusual request on the part of a lady, and as the Professor did not know of any female acquaintances who would be particularly anxious to see him in the dissecting-room, his curiosity was aroused to learn the cause of this lady's visit.

After the lapse of half a minute or s a tall, angular woman, past middle life, with a Teutonic cast of countenance and an unmistakable accent, made her all right, and I will be responsible for it. You see, my children are hungry, and it will not do to starve while one can get bread. I do hate to see them dying before my very eyes while I am able to give them no help."

"Perhaps, then, it is the body of one of your children you are going to sell," interposed Professor Walsh. • In that case it would be of no use to us, as we require adults alone."

"On that score you may rest easy. It is not my children's body, but my own, for I can get bread now no other way, and you can have it as soon as I receive the money, for I can die easy when I know the little ones have had something to eat."

Karaveloff denied that Bulgaria had any agreement with England or Austria before the Roumelian revolution respecting the union of Bulgaria and Roumelia, but that they acted on their own responsibility in taking the initiative in bringing about the union. If there was any instigator in the matter, said the Bulgarian Premier, it was Russia, whose Consul-General at Phillipopo lis first agitated the union and helped to start a newspaper at Phillipopolis devoted to the cause of the union with Bulgarian money. When I entered the Ministry, believing the game dangerous, I stopped the subsidy of the Bulgarian Government to the newspaper and forbade the meetings of Unionists in Bulgaria. Karaveloff reaffirmed the statement that Prince Alexander had notified Russia of the intention of Roumelia to unite with Bulgaria, and Roumelia was willing to continue the Turkish suzebut would not cede an inch of territory. NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

ANEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, October 27.—Bay by day bustness on the Stock Exchange is being reduced in amount of transactions, and indications multiply that the long-promised resection is begun in earnest. The general opinion among those who believe in a still further decine js that there will be snarp reactions, and indications multiply that the long-promised resection is begun in earnest. The general opinion among those who believe in a still further decine js that there will be snarp reactions, but that the tendency will still be downward for some time to come, until materially lower features have been reached. On the other hand, the bulls insist that bottom fagures were reached to day, and predict a further advance in prices. The built following, however, is diminishing in numbers of the active stocks were reached before noon, but after a moderate degree of activity in the early dealings, but later themselves were laddenly the State and local candidates in warm terms. Then Mr. Anderson introduced Congressman George L. Converse, of Ohio. He said a Converse was called to answer a Four-Acre speech at Madison Square Garden a few nights ago. of the day for the most active stocks. Lake Shore and St. Paul alone can be said to have been active. The extrème fluctuations were within the range of 1½ and the closing prices were ½ to 1½ higher than the final figures yesterday. It was generally understood this merning that a raid was to be made on St. Paul, but large sustaining orders came from Chicago, and the stock was not allowed to sei below 85, at which it opened; it closed 1½ over yesterday. Northwestern shows a gain of 1½, and the stock was quiet and strong all day. Lake Shore was very foverish in the forenoon, but closed strong and ½ higher. Western Union is up 1½; Pacific stail, Lackawanna, and Louisville and Nashville each 1. Other active stocks show fractional gains. Saies, 339,000 shares.

EXVIEW OF THE CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, October 27.—The visible-supply

CHICAGO, Getober 27.—The visible-supply statement of wheat, as compiled by both New York and Chicago statisticians, was a surprise to the trade. A former statement made the increase less than half a million bushels, while the latter made it somewhat more than 900,000 busnels. It had been estimated that the report might disclose an increase of fully three million bushels, while very few traders appeared to expect less than one and a balf nallion bushels. To increase the effect of posting was to at once infuse life and strength into the market, and the starting prices at the opening of 'Change were fully ic, over the closing yesterday afternoon December began at $5\pmu_0$, but under free offerings sold off to $7\pmu_0$, rase to $5\pmu_0$, is in lander free offerings sold off to $7\pmu_0$, rase good buying, advanced to $8\pmu_0$, and c.ossd

OVER-SEA GOSSIP.

About Some Notable Persons-The Northum [From Mr. Yates's World, London.]

Statements have appeared in the pa-Duke of Edinburgh and the Prince of Wales are going about "in the strict-est incognite." What arrant nonsense is this? A man like the Prince of Wales, who has been "photographed like this and photographed like that " in every conceivable costume and uniform save the cocked hat and pair of straps of the Sandwich Islander, and whose only chance of nonrecognition is the absurd way in which he is flattered every other week by the illustrated journals, has just as much chance of preserving an incognito as 5914 Mr. Toole at Margate or Mr. Irving in the Strand. If, by assuming a different title, the Prince desires to drop pro tem. his position and his dignity, the attempt is futile, as he seems to be the recipient of banquets and courtesies which are accorded to the Prince of Wales and would not be given to Baron Renfrew or even to Baron Rothschild. The vacant Garter will be offered to the Duke of Northumberland, to whom the Queen will not make any objection. If the Duke does not care to accept a blue ribbon at his advanced age, the stall will be given either to the Duke of Norfolk or to the Duke of Buccleuch, the latter for choice, as he would be the more acceptable of the pair at Balmoral, and Lord Salisbury may deem it expedient to give him the preference in order to extinguish the sore feeling which was caused among the Buccleuch clan when Lord Lothian was passed over for the Scottish secretaryship. A stall in St. George's has almost invariably been held by the owner of Alnwick Castle, and it was in a discussion as to a vacant Garter that the first Duke of the present creation elicited the solitary bon mot with which George III. can be credited. There is a sparkling sketch of the rise of the Percy family in the early chapters of "Tancred," in which Lord Beaconsfield, after relating how the first Duke obtained his honors, adds that George III. vowed that at least the new Duke should never have the Garter. When in due course his Grace begged for a vacant ribbon he exclaimed, on receiving a negative, " I am the first Duke of Northumberland that ever was refused the Garter"; to which the King replied, "Yes, and you are the first Smithson that ever asked for it." I hear that the Queen of Denmark is afterward coming on to England to visit orivate terms.

KYE.—112 bushels very good at 70 to 72c.
KPEAS.—92 bushels blackeye at $1.25. Sandringham, and it is probable that the Duchess of Cumberland will come over with her mother. The Duchess is not strikingly pretty, but she has a most pleasing and intellectual expres-sion, and is highly accomplished, taking a deep interest in art, literature, and politics. The Crown Princess of Germany would recognize her as a kindred spirit, if circumstances permitted of their meeting; but of this there is not the slightest chance, as the Duke of Cumberland is more implacable than ever against the imperial family, and he has worried himself so much about his rejected rights and his lost kingdom that he is becoming quite broken in health, and looks old and haggard and most melancholy. The Queen of Hanover. who is one of the kindest and most charming old ladies in Europe, now resides permanently at Gmunden with her son, and is an immense favor-ite both with her daughter-in-law and with the Prince of Wales. sesses a very lar e fortune, and is really in a much more comfortable situstion than he would be at Hanover or Brunswick, as, under the altered condition of affairs in Germany, the ruler of a small State is practically only a sort of Governor-General, taking his orders in all important matters from Berlin. The Duke probably thinks that if he were back at Herrenhausen he would be able to take an independent line like his father and grandfather, but there has been a radical change since 1866, and if he remembered this he would perhaps be more reconciled to his disposition.
